From the Earth to the Heavens
FOR OVER 150 YEARS

Since 1865, we've been mastering the art of tobacco growing and craftsmanship. From the rich fields of Cuba to the sun-kissed soils of Nicaragua and Honduras, we have tilled the land to create the finest handmade cigars – From the Earth to the Heavens.

For five generations, the finest tabaquero tradition has been rolled into every cigar that bears our name. Tobacco is in our blood, in our soul, and in our relentless determination to perfect every step of the cigar-making process, from seed to smoke.

It's not just our passion. It's our reason for existing.

THE PLASENCIA FAMILY

A STORY OF RESILIENCE AND PASSION

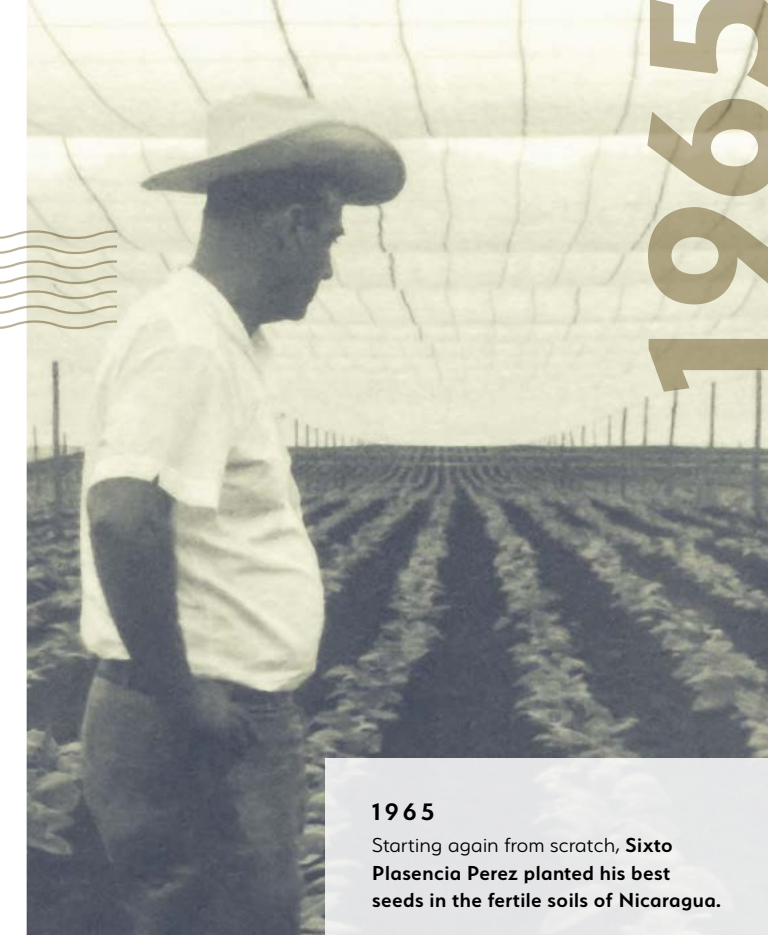

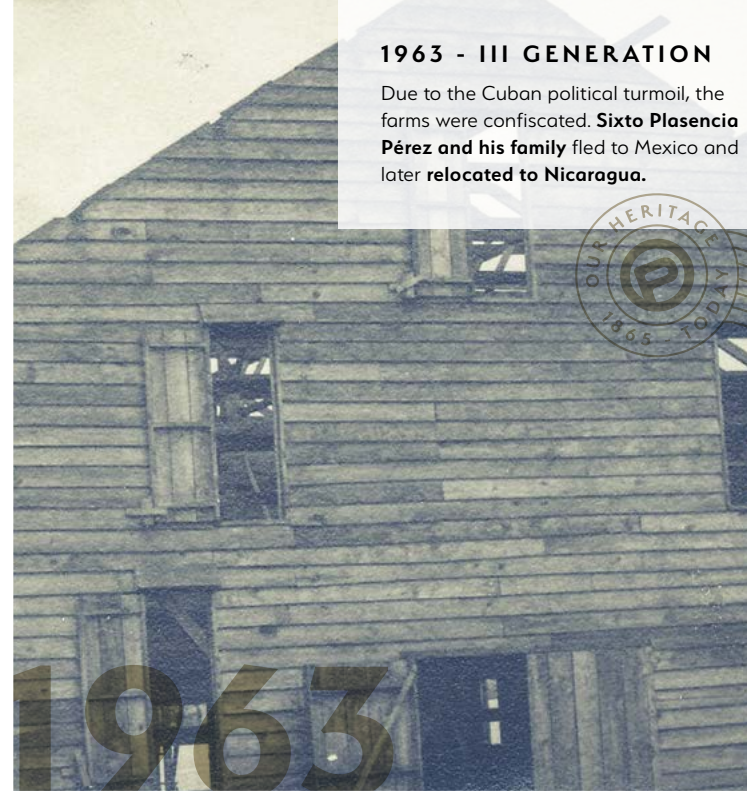

1865 - I GENERATION

Don Eduardo Plasencia left the Canary Islands in search of success and opportunity, and started growing tobacco in Vuelta Abajo, Cuba.

1963 - III GENERATION

Due to the Cuban political turmoil, the farms were confiscated. Sixto Plasencia Pérez and his family fled to Mexico and later relocated to Nicaragua.

1965

Starting again from scratch, Sixto Plasencia Perez planted his best seeds in the fertile soils of Nicaragua.

1898 - II GENERATION

Don Eduardo's nephew, Sixto Plasencia Juares, joined his uncle in the family's business.

1943

Sixto Plasencia Juares created "Hijos de Sixto Plasencia" (Sixto Plasencia's Sons) and began to export and sell to bigger companies. His son, Sixto Plasencia Pérez, joined the family's business.

1978

Political turmoil in Nicaragua forced the family to move to Honduras. They were more determined than ever to persevere after being relocated yet again.

1985 - IV GENERATION

Néstor Plasencia officially entered the cigar-making industry.

1990

The Plasencia family moved back to Nicaragua and began operating in both Honduras and Nicaragua, increasing production.

1920

Sixto Plasencia Juares expanded the business and opened the Corojal farm.

1995

The family consolidated its interests as one big cigar manufacturer. They purchased more land and factories, increased tobacco production, and began supplying it to their own factories as well as others.

2000

The Plasencia family successfully managed to grow organic tobacco and get it OCIA-certified. To this day, we are still the only OCIA-certified tobacco company.

1998

Néstor Andrés graduated from agricultural school and began testing efforts to grow organic tobacco.

2005

The Plasencia family opened more factories in Nicaragua and Honduras, and continued to make more cigars and produce even more tobacco. Today, over 30 different brands trust Plasencia to produce their cigars.

2010

The Plasencia family continued their sustainability practices and started initiatives to conserve water on farms by using fertigation systems and reducing water usage by 50%.

2013

The Plasencia family opened their first preschool and childhood development center for the children of the employees and the local communities.

2015

The Plasencia family became the largest tobacco grower for premium cigars in the world and continued growing their teams, factories, and plantations in Honduras and Nicaragua, producing 40 million cigars a year.

2017

Plasencia Cigars, the family's own brand, was launched. Néstor Andrés, Gustavo, and José Luis Plasencia introduced the Alma series, Reserva Original, and the Cosecha 146, among others.

2022

Plasencia Cigars has brand presence in more than 80 countries. We continue our sustainability initiatives. We are still the only ones in the industry to produce certified organic tobacco, and continue our mission to establish additional preschools and childhood development centers.
